Ganesh Chaturthi Celebration

Mumbai, Maharashtra

Child Help Foundation (CHF) celebrated Ganesh Chaturthi through community outreach and creative activities across different locations. In Thane, Maharashtra, CHF distributed nutritious meals to 200 less privileged people and children as part of a special food distribution drive, sharing the blessings of Bappa with those in need. The festival was also celebrated enthusiastically across MBMC schools, where students created Ganesh Murtis using artificial clay, encouraging creativity and hands-on learning. Additionally, CHF celebrated Ganesh Chaturthi with children at Pravas Foundation through a paper Ganpati-making activity. The children enthusiastically crafted and decorated their own paper idols while learning about the cultural significance of Lord Ganesha and the festival. These initiatives combined festive joy, creative expression, and community support, making the occasion meaningful for children and families.

Child Help Foundation (CHF), in collaboration with National Fertilisers Limited (NFL), inaugurated a new computer lab at Rajkiyakrit Uchchatar Madhyamik Vidyalaya in Mehus, Barbigha, Sheikhpura district, Bihar. The initiative aims to strengthen digital education and provide students with access to essential computer facilities, supporting their learning and preparing them for future academic and professional opportunities.

The newly inaugurated computer lab has 10 computers and an all-in-one printer, giving students a dedicated space to build digital literacy and gain hands-on experience with technology. The facility will benefit 1,309 students from Standards 9 to 12, helping them become more familiar with computer-based learning and essential digital skills.

Dr Poonam Sharma, Independent Director of National Fertilisers Limited, attended the inauguration as the Chief Guest, marking an important milestone in the school's efforts to enhance its educational infrastructure. The collaboration between CHF and NFL reflects a shared commitment to making technology-enabled learning more accessible to students.

Access to computers plays an important role in modern education, enabling students to explore digital resources, strengthen their technical knowledge and develop skills that are increasingly valuable in today's world. By establishing this computer lab, the initiative seeks to create better learning opportunities and encourage students to embrace technology as part of their education.

Through this initiative, Child Help Foundation, in collaboration with National Fertilisers Limited, continues to support quality education by bridging the digital divide and empowering students with the skills and resources needed for a brighter future.

Anatomy of the Heart: Everything You Need to Know About Your Heart

The heart is one of the most important organs in the human body. It works continuously, day and night, pumping blood to every part of the body. With every heartbeat, it supplies oxygen and essential nutrients to our organs while helping remove waste products. Yet, despite being such a vital organ, many people know very little about the anatomy of the heart or how it actually works.

On World Heart Day, observed every year on 29 September, it is an opportunity to understand this remarkable organ, recognise the importance of heart health, and learn how early care can make a difference.

What Is the Heart and Where Is It Located?

The heart is a muscular organ located in the chest, between the lungs and slightly towards the left side. It is approximately the size of a person's clenched fist.

Although the heart may look like a single organ, it consists of several important parts that work together to maintain blood circulation throughout the body. Understanding the parts of the heart and their functions can help people better understand why heart health is so important.

The Four Chambers of the Heart

One of the most important aspects of the anatomy of the heart is its four chambers. These chambers work together to receive and pump blood.

1. Right Atrium

The right atrium receives blood that has already travelled through the body and is low in oxygen. This blood needs to be sent to the lungs to receive fresh oxygen.

2. Right Ventricle

The right ventricle receives blood from the right atrium and pumps it towards the lungs through the pulmonary artery. In the lungs, the blood releases carbon dioxide and picks up oxygen.

3. Left Atrium

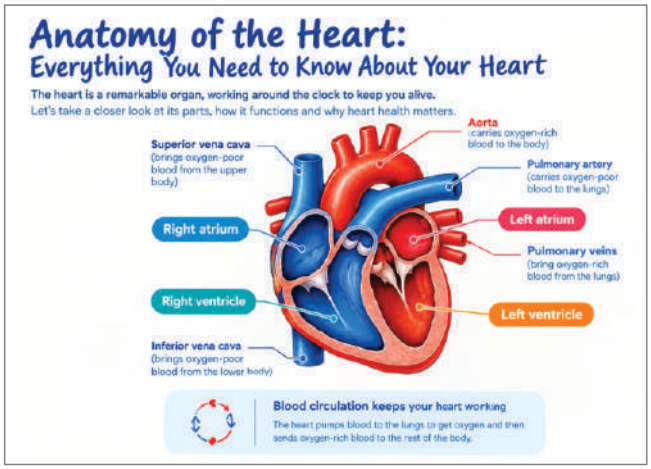

Once blood receives oxygen in the lungs, it returns to the heart through the pulmonary veins and enters the left atrium.

4. Left Ventricle

The left ventricle is the strongest chamber of the heart. It pumps oxygen-rich blood through the aorta to the rest of the body. Because it has to send blood throughout the body, its muscular wall is thicker than that of the other chambers.

Together, these four chambers keep the heart's pumping function working continuously.
